Dear John:

STATINTL

It is not our intention to be negligent in the return of the [REDACTED] camera and we do owe you an explanation.

In order to perform the missions intended with the camera, certain modifications had to be made and auxiliary parts purchased. This was accomplished by use of company funds.

When the camera is returned it will of course have to be stripped of the added parts and because of the modifications it would then be quite inoperable.

We would like to continue using the camera on surveys requested by the Department of Agriculture and we therefore would like your advice and guidance in the possibility of purchasing it.

May we hear from you?

Very truly yours,

STATINTL
